At Kinbrace, on the A897 from Helmsdale, take the B871 in the direction of Syre and Bettyhill. After some 12km, Ben Griam Mor becomes very visible on the north-east side of the road, and a car parking area is located on the north side of the road, about 500m south-east of the Garvault Hotel. Park here, and walk about 50m north-west up the road, at which point an Argo/4x4 track leads north-east across the rough sheep grazings. Follow this track for about 3km around the western flank of Ben Griam Mor, until the track ends at the lochside. There is no further track from here to the summit, although at times sheep/deer tracks are visible. Follow the edge of Loch Choire nam Mang around its southern bank, and then keep travelling east towards the second loch, Loch Druim a' Chliabhain, again following the southern shore around to the base of Ben Griam Beg. This approx. 2km route around the lochs is very boggy, and requires one wide burn crossing, which can be difficult when in spate. Now walk 1.5km north-east up the steep inclines to the summit of Ben Griam Beg.
