FOREWORD

The most positive aspect of investing in our communities is the way people come together to meet the challenges they face. The steps that the communities we work with have taken to protect their most vulnerable residents during the coronavirus pandemic is truly inspiring. Volunteers and community groups have worked tirelessly and selflessly to ensure vital services were available at a time that they were most needed. While we know that providing funding was the easy part of this response, we are proud to have played a role in supporting communities. By responding quickly and consistently, both at the outset and throughout the pandemic, we have been able to provide the essential funds needed to support community initiatives.

As we begin the long recovery from the pandemic, our focus at SSE Renewables is on building a green economy which is able to support and deliver our climate action goals. It is vital that we focus on ambitious policies, strategic investment and renewable developments as the sound basis for the journey to Net Zero. SSE Renewables is committed to the role we play in the green recovery and in the last year alone we've initiated construction of onshore and offshore developments which will provide 5GW of clean energy. These sites provide jobs, skills and infrastructure to local areas but equally as important, they deliver real social benefits. We will invest over £300m in community benefit from our current renewable assets which makes us one of the largest investors in this field in Europe. Experience shows that local people use these funds to transform their communities, from building housing to reduce depopulation of rural communities through to supporting apprenticeship programmes which ensure young people have opportunities and are equipped for the jobs of the future.

SSE has shown how serious it is about fulfilling its purpose to build a better world of energy by signing up to be a lead sponsor of the 26th UN Climate Change Conference of the Parties (COP26) summit in Glasgow. The summit will provide a global stage to showcase the work we are carrying out to provide clean energy to millions of homes. We are on the front line of climate change and supporting the summit as it sets a clear framework for a truly just transition to net zero.

FOCUSING ON OUR PRIORITIES

2020/21 has been a year like no other. Communities have been at the front line of responding to the coronavirus pandemic, often coming under significant pressure to deliver essential support to those residents who have needed it most. Even before the initial lockdown period in late March 2020, we recognised that our funding could play an important role in supporting communities to deliver the essential services required. As everyone was adapting to a new way of living and working we began adapting some longstanding practices to ensure the safety of our volunteer panel members, many of whom were classed as vulnerable. Even with a different way of working the following priorities were achieved:

Coronavirus – in addition to the commitment to release 10% of annual funds to local coronavirus responses for the initial emergency response at the start of the pandemic, the funds have continued to support the needs of communities throughout the year to address the ongoing response: The Sustainable Development Fund doubled the awards made in the Highlands to £2.2m (p4); the local funds in Great Britain funded a range of resilient community responses (p18+19); the majority of funds on the Island of Ireland were focused exclusively on supporting pandemic responses.

New wind farms – in 2020/21 SSE Renewables has been able to safely start construction at four landmark sites and we have progressed the community funds in all locations: Viking Community Fund (p10) providing £72m in community benefit; Dogger Bank Community Fund (p15) providing £1m in community benefit during construction; Gordonbush Extension Community Funds providing £3.6m in community benefit; and Seagreen Community Fund providing £1.8m in community benefit.

Joint ventures – the construction of new wind farms mean the community investment team now supports seven joint ventures. We have implemented a new approach for joint ventures including closer relationships with managers and publishing independent reporting for each joint venture. We hope to take board members to visit community projects in 2021.

Transformational projects – some communities have now had experience of operating funds for over 10 years. This has built confidence and enhanced ambition in the use of the funds. This year, substantial investments have included the development of a community hub in South Lanarkshire (p37) and a multi-sport complex in Dunkeld (p33). These ambitious community-led projects increase the impact and legacy from community funds.

PRIORITIES FOR 2020/21

New funds – SSE Renewables has started construction of Lenalea in Donegal, its first new onshore wind farm in Ireland in 3 years. SSE Renewables also aims to start construction of Achary Extension and Strathly South in the Scottish Highlands, subject to reaching financial close. In line with good practice we will begin consultations with the local communities to help shape and establish the associated community benefit funds.

Pandemic recovery – funds will continue to be made available to support communities as they recover from the impact of the coronavirus pandemic.

COP 26 – SSE is a proud to sponsor the 26th UN Climate Change Conference of the Parties in Glasgow. We will work to ensure our sponsorship highlights the role that community funding plays in supporting communities reach their Net Zero ambitions.

Renewable Electricity Support Scheme (RESS) (Republic of Ireland) – the terms and conditions of the RESS support scheme mandate how community benefit funds will operate in Ireland. We are committed to helping ROI achieve ambitious climate targets. We will ensure that our community funds in Ireland operate in accordance with the newly published RESS Good Practice Principles Handbook.

Transformational projects – the reach and ambition of the communities continue to grow and next year will see the completion of several significant investments including a community owned housing project in Scotland's Great Glen. These projects provide infrastructure which will be utilised by communities for generations to come and many provide new income sources for further re-investment into the local areas.

REGIONAL FUNDS

SSE Renewables’ regional funds increase the reach and impact of community benefit funding by supporting projects across the local authority regions in which our wind farms operate. 2020/21 was an unprecedented year for the Sustainable Development Fund with the largest ever awards made from the fund. Funding was awarded in the Highland and North Lincolnshire local authority areas. The impact of the coronavirus pandemic was at the centre of the panels’ decision making leading them to release double the level of funding into the 2020/21 allocation. This ensured important projects got the timely support they needed to help the communities recover from the pandemic.

Lord Jack McConnell,
Chair, Sustainable Development Fund

“These are difficult times for those who live, work and do business in Highland Region. We have supported projects that provide hope for the future with more sustainable communities and jobs. And to make sure these projects happen we will be flexible in working with local organisations to meet the new circumstances.”

UN SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

The UN Sustainable Development Goals provide a blueprint to achieve a better and more sustainable future for all. SSE Renewables recognises the value of the goals in measuring the impact of our community benefit and have integrated the goals to work alongside our outcomes approach developed by the New Economics Foundation. The initial programme is focused on key locals employment sectors including farming, food and drink and enterprise.

In 2021/22 the Sustainable Development Fund will operate in South Lanarkshire, North Lincolnshire, Scottish Borders, Perth and Kinross and Dumfries and Galloway. The panels recognise that the coronavirus pandemic has put unforeseen pressure on local communities and will focus on supporting initiatives that help the local social economic recovery.

UN Sustainable Development Goals

Goal 3 - ensure healthy lives and promote well-being for all at all ages.

Goal 4 - ensure inclusive and equitable quality education and promote lifelong learning opportunities for all.

Goal 7.3 - by 2030, double the global rate of improvement in energy efficiency.

Goal 8.9 - by 2030, devise and implement policies to promote sustainable tourism that creates jobs and promotes local culture and products.

Goal 11 - make cities and human settlements inclusive, safe, resilient and sustainable.

Goal 11.1 - by 2030, ensure access for all to adequate, safe and affordable housing.

Investment and Example Project

- £61k - To develop a suicide prevention programme in Fort William.
- £149k - To train 1,000 young people in the north Highlands.
- £725k - To provide new solar energy assets in three communities.
- £633k - To develop a sustainable tourism hub in Glen Urquhart.
- £330k - To develop a community hub in Dornoch.
- £304k - To support the building of 12 community owned homes in Fort Augustus.

CASE STUDY CREATING OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

One of the hardest hit groups of the coronavirus pandemic has been young people. BBC Panorama found people aged 16-25 were more than twice as likely as older workers to have lost their job. This is what makes the support provided by the Sustainable Development Fund even more important during challenging times. The panel has invested in two new projects to improve the employability skills of young people living in the Highlands.

Farmer Jones Academy offer experimental accredited training and apprenticeships to young people living in the north Highlands. The project provides training, masterclasses and apprenticeships to young people aged 14 to 24 years old. The programme leads local sectors with initial programmes focused on farming, food and drink and enterprise.

New Start Highland have developed a new complex for their Inverness Training Academy. The new initiative will match the demand from a key employment sector, including wholesale, with job ready, fully trained participants who possess both the qualifications and level of job experience needed to succeed in getting and maintaining a full-time job.

The investment in these projects will help young people access job opportunities which emerge after the pandemic.

CASE STUDY

BUILDING GREEN COMMUNITIES

The climate emergency has shown the need for innovative local renewable solutions to help reduce the global crisis. The Sustainable Development Fund has invested in eight renewable energy projects across the Highlands. The sustainable energy projects will help communities move towards a low carbon future. The projects not only provide clean energy, but they also help the local economy by providing the necessary infrastructure needed to attract business opportunities to the region.

The Knoydart Energy Security Project was initiated after a major failure in the hydropower pipeline supplying electricity to the community. With no national electricity grid supply in Knoydart, a failure in the hydropower system significantly impacted the rural and remote community and local businesses. The Sustainable Development Fund panel awarded £176k to help initiate a more resilient energy system that's fit for purpose and will support development in Knoydart for the next 40 years. This new system will stimulate local economic growth including a potential new local brewery and the possibility of providing shore-based power to cruise ships that dock at the community pier.

£300k, one of the largest ever awards from the Sustainable Development Fund, was provided to Isle of Raasay Development

£725k
awarded from Highland Sustainable Development Fund

Trust to build two run of river hydro schemes. The early investment from the fund was pivotal in enabling the trust to secure a further £650k from crowd funding. The hydro scheme will not only help reduce the 44% of the island population who are in fuel poverty but will also encourage new businesses including tourism ventures. Once fully operational, the scheme will provide CO2 savings equivalent to c127 tonnes of CO2e per year.

RECOVERING HIGHLAND TOURISM

Royal Zoological Society of Scotland (RZSS) has received a grant of £200k to contribute to their new discovery centre at the Highland Wildlife Park, near Kingussie, within the Cairngorms National Park. This is intended to be the only visitor centre in Scotland dedicated to showcasing native wildlife and exciting conservation projects working to protect it, and the overall project will cost £5m.

RZSS will create a flexible learning and educational event space within the centre and they aim to give access to more people, allowing them to develop their skills and understanding on how to conserve our native wildlife heritage. The inspiring setting will focus on enabling children and young people to engage with activities designed to develop science, technology, engineering, maths (STEM).

Once opened, a new discovery and learning team of four staff will deliver an education programme at the centre. An outreach programme, combined with use of the Skype Global Classroom platform, will expand the reach of the project across the Highland region.

"We are very grateful for support from SSE Renewables towards building Scotland's Wildlife Discovery Centre at Highland Wildlife Park. This exciting new experience will play a pivotal role in inspiring more people to protect and connect with nature and wildlife."

CEO, Royal Zoological Society of Scotland

LOCAL FUNDS

The local funds ensure those living closest to renewable assets are the main recipients of community benefit funds. All decisions are made by local people either by panels of community members or by local development trusts.

Panels and trusts have had to adapt this year to new ways of working due to travel restrictions and the inability to meet face to face. New technology has allowed discussion and decision making to continue almost unaffected, and the way panel members and applicants have embraced this has been inspiring.

The primary focus for the local funds this year has been ensuring that the communities were supported as they dealt with the consequences of the pandemic. The community response is testament to the resilience of rural areas, with volunteers helping the most vulnerable and new support services quickly established. We recognise several communities we work with have experienced loss in the last year, including members who have been involved in local panels and in establishing community projects. It is a reminder of the tireless work of volunteers in communities and it is important for us to recognise the value that they bring to the projects that we fund.

We continue to align our funding to the UN Sustainable Development Goals. The goals are a blueprint to achieve a better and more sustainable future for all. Funding in 2020/21 shows an increased allocation to healthy lives and Sustainable Development Goal 3 which reflects the impact due to the pandemic.

In 2021/22 the focus for the local funds will be ensuring communities continue to thrive after the pandemic. We recognise some projects were delayed due to lockdown restrictions and we will support them to be re-established. We will also encourage communities to learn from the pandemic and adapt to new challenges. The Gordonbush Community Fund will reach its fifth year and we look forward to the first panel awards from the Clyde Extension Fund.

CASE STUDY SUPPORTING COMMUNITIES WHEN THEY NEED IT MOST

The coronavirus pandemic provided the biggest community crisis since the SSE Renewables community funds were established. We recognised that a proactive response was required to help the most vulnerable in communities. In April 2020, we released 10% of local wind farm funding to community councils to support grass roots responses and the immediate impact of the pandemic. As the situation evolved, local panels ensured funds were made available to safeguard vital services and help establish new community support projects.

- In the Highlands, Caithness Community Connections responded to the unmet need of the vulnerable community of Lybster. A project which started to provided lunches for children has expanded to provide a community wide support service.
- In Perthshire, the Alyth Community Support Group was established to provide a 'Food for Thought' service and a new support hub in an empty building within the town.
- In South Lanarkshire, Leadhills Community Council helped provide hot meals for local vulnerable people throughout the pandemic.
- In Dumfries and Galloway, funding was provided to Royal Burgh of Sanquhar and District Community Council to provide micro grants for vulnerable residents.
- In North Lincolnshire, a grant was provided to the Forge Centre to provide vital support and guidance to the local people experiencing homelessness.

The range of projects supported is testament to the resilience of the communities and the commitment of their volunteers. The local funds will continue to help communities as they recover from the pandemic.

CREATING GREAT BRITAIN'S LARGEST WIND FARM COMMUNITY FUND

The creation of a Viking Energy Wind Farm on Shetland will provide enough power for 475,000 homes. The wind farm will also provide the largest renewable community benefit fund in GB. It will be administered by Shetland Community Benefit Fund and support projects from all 18 community council areas in Shetland.

During the initial years of the fund, the focus will be on completing a community consultation to identify what issues the people of Shetland would like the funds to be used for. The fund will also begin administering micro grants to support grassroots projects and local grants to help fund projects which are important in each community council area. Once the community consultation is complete, a business plan will be developed to outline how the circa £72m investment will be used to support community priorities through grants, loans and investments.

The first award made from the fund was £200k to the Shetland MRI Scanner Appeal. Currently 600 patients from Shetland must travel to the mainland to have an MRI scan each year. The equipment is used to diagnose and monitor a wide variety of conditions and the number of patients who require scans is steadily increasing. The travel experience can be detrimental to the patient at an already difficult time. The provision of an MRI scanner within Shetland will provide a significant health and wellbeing improvement for community members for years to come.

"The Viking Community Fund, the largest onshore fund in the UK, is both frightening and exciting for Shetland Community Benefit Fund Ltd. Managing the fund presents us with enormous challenges but tremendous opportunities to help sustain and develop the local communities. The fund has the potential to make a genuine difference in tackling the problems and issues that concern islanders. We look forward to working with SSE Renewables on the journey ahead."

Chris Bunyan,
Chair, Shetland Community Benefit Fund

CASE STUDY

CREATING NEW OPPORTUNITIES TO ENJOY THE OUTDOORS

The restrictions implemented during lockdown encouraged everyone to rediscover their local area and appreciate the assets which are on their doorstep. The community near the Griffin Wind Farm used the time to experience the new Perthshire Gravel Trails which map and promote hundreds of miles of traffic-free off-road cycling routes. A public consultation in 2019 identified the need for better bike routes in Perthshire and local people helped identify eleven new routes.

The new routes combine nature, heritage and adventure and are tailored to different ability levels. A dedicated website provides users with videos of each route, a GPX map and a detailed description to appreciate the scenery. The resource has been used almost 16,000 times in its first six months. Analysis of visitors to the region after lockdown showed they have provided an average of £176 per visitor to the local economy while using the trails.

CREATING A COMMUNITY PATH NETWORK

GORDONBUSH
COMMUNITY FUND

£45k

awarded to Rogart
Development Trust

A community consultation in 2016 identified the need to develop and improve the path network near the village of Rogart in Sutherland. The final section of the resulting project was completed in 2021 with the replacement of a footbridge over the River Fleet. The project now provides a four-mile circular path which is all off-road and is accessible for all abilities.

The path has been well utilised by community members during the pandemic and it is hoped the route will provide an attraction for visitors with consequential benefits to the village shop, pub and local accommodation providers in the years to come.

The Gordonbush grant has enabled Rogart Development Trust to finalise the 4-mile Round Rogart Path. This will give visitors and locals alike a circular way-marked route promoting a healthy outdoor lifestyle.

INVESTING IN COMMUNITY ASSETS

TODDLERBURN
COMMUNITY FUND

£100k

awarded to Macfie
Hall Committee

Heriot is a rural community in the Moorfoot Hills in the Scottish Borders. The community is spread across 50 square miles and like many rural areas, the hall was the heart of the community but had come to the end of useful life. The rejuvenation of Macfie Hall has developed a new community space to be utilised for generations to come. The architecturally impressive re-development took inspiration from nearby Borthwick Castle. The building provides a flexible space which can be aligned into either a large hall setting or easily divided into multi-purpose meeting and working spaces.

"We are enormously grateful to the fund for the confidence it showed in this important community project, which was vital in helping it attract funding from other sources and has resulted in a fantastic refurbishment."

Douglas Crabbe,
Chair, Macfie Hall Committee

OFFSHORE FUNDS

DOGGER BANK
WIND FARM

SSE Renewables has the largest offshore wind development pipeline across GB and Ireland. This year has seen the growth of our community funds linked to offshore wind including the launch of the Dogger Bank Community Fund, our joint venture with Equinor and Eni, and the launch of the Seagreen Community Fund, our joint venture with Total Energies. The new funds have learnt from the success of our existing Beatrice Community Fund, our joint venture with Red Rock Power Ltd, TRIG and Equitix.

The coronavirus pandemic impacted the delivery of our offshore funds. Seagreen and Dogger Bank both got special agreement to start their community funds early to provide emergency funding to local community projects including Welcome Centre Hornsea, EVA Women's Aid and a number of community councils in Angus.

The Beatrice panels recognised the pandemic had influenced most applications this year with requests to deal with the emergency including Ice and Fire Distillery and Caithness Community Connections.

2021/22 will be a busy year for all the offshore wind farms. With Dogger Bank construction continuing the community fund will open the Scholarship Fund supporting 50 young people. The consultation with communities in Seagreen will continue and the funding will support local priorities. The Beatrice Partnership Fund will open for the final time and conclude £3m of investments in Caithness and Moray.

CASE STUDY INVESTING IN THE WORKFORCE OF THE FUTURE

DOGGER BANK WIND FARM

According to the UK Commission for Employment & Skills, 43% of science, technology, engineering and maths (STEM) vacancies are hard to fill due to skills shortages. The core route to resolving this skills gap is education with a focus from early years needed to create the workforce of the future.

During the first three years of the Dogger Bank Community Fund, the funding will support an ambitious plan to improve STEM attainment across East Riding of Yorkshire, South Tyneside and Redcar and Cleveland. The project will see the wind farm work with local education leaders and national STEM specialists to provide a range of support including children benefiting from industry leading STEM Continued Professional Development and STEM resources. This will lead to a systematic change in the quality of learning particularly at the pivotal early years stage.

The wind farm, which is a joint venture between SSE Renewables, Equinor and Eni, will also open a STEM Scholarship Fund. The fund will support 50 local young people from the three local authority areas to gain further education qualifications and the skills required to enter STEM careers. This support will be vital in helping young people overcome barriers to further education and help them gain the skills needed to gain local employment opportunities.

"The support from Dogger Bank Wind Farm will open up new learning opportunities for children in the subjects of science, technology, engineering and maths which I hope will go some way to help shape their future."

ENSURING FAMILIES HAVE ACCESS TO LOCAL CHILDCARE

BEATRICE MORAY PARTNERSHIP FUND

£65k

awarded to Lossie 2-3 Group

The Lossie 2-3 Group’s childcare service in Lossiemouth was put at risk when they found out the community hall they utilised was due to close. An initial award from the Beatrice Partnership Fund safeguarded the service by providing £50k to help them move to a new site and develop a family and well-being hub. The site has provision for 30 children, with 50% coming from families needing additional support. When the Beatrice Partnership Fund panel learnt the group had been left with a significant funding gap due to the closure of the service during lockdown, they stepped in to provide emerging support with £15k awarded to help retain core services.

CASE STUDY

FUNDING COMMUNITY LED REGENERATION

BEATRICE CAITHNESS FUND

A key focus for communities in receipt of wind farm funding is ensuring the people come together to collectively identify their priority actions and create viable solutions. One of the successes of the funds has been the support provided to establish and enhance development trusts or similar community organisations. The trusts enable the community to take control of their own projects and build sustainable solutions for the future. The award to Sinclair’s Bay Trust will enable the new trust to be developed and ensure they have the capacity and capability to support their community. The success of the Beatrice Funds supporting Caithness community development is further demonstrated by £20k being allocated to Caithness Voluntary Group to help a collaboration of local trusts to employ a development officer who will help them all enhance their skills and experience.

NORTHERN IRELAND

£445k awarded to 139

projects

53 scholarships supported

SSE Renewables is Northern Ireland’s largest generator of wind power and operates community funds for our three wind farms: Bessy Bell, Tievenameenta, and Slieve Kirk Wind Park. When the impact of the coronavirus pandemic was identified, we took the decision to provide the annual funding amount for each local fund to help the communities support their most vulnerable residents. Restrictions have also had an impact on young people and we have ensured the Scholarship and Learning for Life programmes continued to invest in supporting the life chances of young residents.

SUPPORTING SCHOLARS DURING THE PANDEMIC

The Scholarship Fund promotes learning and skills development in the local community. It is targeted at full and part-time students from the counties of Derry-Londonderry, Tyrone, County Fermanagh and County Donegal attending either the University of Ulster, South West College or North West Regional College. We spoke to one of the recipients of the 2020 Scholarship Annie Gibson to understand how the pandemic has impacted on her studies and student life.

Can you tell us what you are studying?
I am currently studying a BEng (Hons) in Renewable Energy Engineering at the University of Ulster.

How have you found the course so far?
I am really enjoying the course as I have a keen interest in renewables. My goal is to contribute to tackling several long-term issues like climate change, reducing carbon footprint and global warming.

Can you tell me a bit of how the pandemic has affected you personally?
I was working as a retail assistant but I was let go due to the company's closure due to the pandemic. So financially it is difficult but receiving the scholarship has been such a support to both myself and my family. It has eased an ever-growing financial burden.

Can you tell me a bit of how the pandemic has affected you academically?
With only commencing my studies in September 2020 I haven't met any of my fellow students face to face. Instead I am trying to build up relationships virtually which to be honest isn't ideal. Obviously as a young person you look forward to your university years and I can't help but feel I am being robbed of a year of mine.

What are you hoping for in your 2nd year of University?
I really hope for some degree of normality. I want to meet my fellow students face to face and be able to go out socially to help get to know each other. I want to be able to attend lectures in a lecture theatre something everyone before us took for granted I would imagine.

REPUBLIC OF IRELAND

SSE Renewables quickly recognised that the funds we operate could play an important part in community responses to the pandemic in Republic of Ireland (ROI). We took the decision in spring 2020 to release the funding for all our local wind farm funds early so that it was available for the community initiatives. €355k was distributed to help local coronavirus responses. We also ensured that our other initiatives continued during the pandemic including running the Galway Wind Park Scholarship Programme and the Galway Wind Park Major Project Fund.

The Galway Wind Park Major Project Fund provides support for strategic projects within 10km of Galway Wind Park, our joint venture with Greencoat Renewables. The fund has two key themes of empowering communities and supporting sustainable places. The funding decisions are made by an independent panel of local specialists. The 2021 round of the fund awarded €300k to six local projects which will provide capital improvements to local pathways and recreational sites.

Killannin Pitch Committee was awarded €47,000 to facilitate capital works at the club grounds to help increase the number of participants and the ground safety. The works include improvements to the pitch surfaces, new dugouts to provide shelter and the development of a new exercise area. The enhanced setting will provide an inclusive setting for the community. The club currently has 1,165 members and they hope the new investment will double the numbers in the next two years.

"We are delighted to receive such a generous grant of funding from Galway Wind Park. We hope the club will be pivotal to supporting people as we emerge from the coronavirus pandemic."
